Everybody's Talking

Dog rescues deer: Ralph Dorn of Culpeper, Virginia (U.S.), is proud of his pet, a goldendoodle named Harley. Ralph and his wife Pat always knew Harley was a caring pooch, and had been taking him to a local hospital to work as a therapy dog. But Harley went above and beyond the call of duty when he saved a fawn from drowning. He swam out to the middle of the lake near the Dorns' home and carefully guided the fawn back to shore, where Ralph helped the little creature get out and onto the grass. Soon, the fawn's mother emerged from the woods for a happy reunion. The pair came back to visit the next day, much to Harley's delight.

Crime-fighting grandpa: A great-grandfather in his 80s is being called a hero for taking action to prevent a robbery in a business in Cork, Ireland. Denis O'Connor was on the premises when three thieves arrived. They approached Tim Murphy, the manager, and demanded that he open the safe. Even though O'Connor is an elderly man, he is very fit. He tackled one of the thieves, and his action encouraged Murphy to do the same. All three thieves lost their nerve and bolted out the door. Police were glad O'Connor had stopped the robbery. But in general, law enforcement advises people in these situations to simply obey the thieves to prevent a situation from escalating.

Dry regatta: Regatta events consist of boat races on water. However, in Alice Springs, Northern Territory, Australia, in the middle of the outback, the Henley-on-Todd Regatta occurs on a dry riverbed. At the only regatta of its kind in the world, participants extend their legs through bottomless boats and race along the waterless bed of the Todd River. Owners usually make the boats, which resemble odd versions of yachts, canoes, or rowboats, decorated in any way desired. The display of entrants is quite colourful. The late August event offers other activities, like sandcastle building and mini yacht races for kids. The regatta began as a joke in 1962, and has become a large fundraiser for various humanitarian organizations and charities.

Crooked trees: Aspen trees usually grow upward toward the sky, but the trees in a grove in the province of Saskatchewan, Canada, grow every which way. Located near the town of Hafford, about 95 kilometres (60 miles) north of the city of Saskatoon, the grove has become known as The Crooked Bush, and visitors find it quite eerie, but intriguing. No one knows exactly why the trees in this spot grow this way and, curiously, aspens only a few kilometres away grow straight. The grove is located on private property, but visitors are welcome to come and take a look. A short boardwalk trail is open for all ages to use.
